Test & Evaluation

Daedalus

Daedalus is a tube meter/tester.
 With this device you can test line and power tubes. It tests the tube filaments, anode and cathode over current, current leakage and measures gm in several operating points of the tube. Daedalus helps you to find out if a tube is worn out, or can cause damage to your equipment.
 With Daedalus you can easily match your tubes. The whole process is fully automated and it is very easy to use. At the end of each test there is a full report for the results. Daedalus has a large library of tubes which is continuously updated.
 The software updates are easily loaded through the USB port located on the side of Daedalus.
 Tube adaptors are provided by Tsakiridis - devices for tubes that don't match directly the tube bases on Daedalus.
 Daedalus can be connected to your PC and show you in graphic mode the condition of the tubes and store measurement data.
 There is a continuous software development that is freely provided to users every time.
 Daedalus is a very useful and powerful tool for all tube enthusiasts.
